

Training Today's Correctional Leaders to Meet Tomorrow's Challenges

National Institute of Corrections
PRESENTS:

Evidence-Based Practices for Supervisors
An Interactive, self-paced, web-based training course

Available Online at the NIC Learning Center at <http://NIC.Learn.Com>

The 2-hour course is designed for first-line supervisors responsible for either line staff or line officers whose daily responsibilities require direct interaction with offenders and whose agencies have made a commitment to implement evidence based practices. Upon completion, you will be able to:

- Formulate a plan to address the gaps between current supervisory skills and the skills needed to effectively lead staff in an organization that uses Evidence-Based Practices.
- Describe the principles of Evidence-Based Practices and how those practices can enhance the supervision of employees.
- Design a training regimen that provides staff essential skills to supervise offenders based on Evidence-Based Practices.
- Develop a plan to hold staff accountable for using assessment information based on static and dynamic risk factors and criminogenic needs to develop case plans for managing offenders.
- Develop a plan to consistently monitor, evaluate and reinforce staff performance, as well as collect performance data for measurement outcomes.

- Learn Online
- Accessible 24/7
- Free for Eligible Staff
- Relevant Content
- Award Winning Design

The NIC Learning Center offers a range of courses in correctional and leadership and management topics. Check it out today!

- <http://NIC.Learn.Com>

National Institute of Corrections

For More Information:
Steve Swisher
Correctional Program Specialist
(800) 995-6429, ext 4416
Email: sswisher@bop.gov

To learn more about resources visit our website at <http://nicic.gov>